The Awards Convocation is one of MIT’s largest awards ceremonies, drawing on offices, departments, and people from across the Institute including the arts, athletics, student life, academics, alumni, staff, faculty, and students.

Below is pertinent information regarding the award, the award coordinator’s name, the selection committee, and how the nominees are selected. If you have specific questions about an award please contact the award coordinator.

Award Name: Graduate Teaching Awards.

Award Coordinator Title: Administrative Assistant II for Office of Graduate Education/MIT Graduate Student Council

Managing DLC: Office of Graduate Education/MIT Graduate Student Council.

Award is for: The Graduate Teaching Awards are presented to a faculty member or a teaching assistant from each school (Architecture and Planning, Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences, Engineering, Sloan School of Management, Science, and Health Sciences and Technology)

How are nominations reviewed: All nomination letters are compiled and then read for review by the current MIT Graduate Student Council ARC chair (Academics, Research and Careers Committee) and an additional team of four to five students.

Selection criteria: The criteria that the nominations are measured against include the following rubric:

1. Number of nomination letters received for the award.
2. Role of the individuals who submitted the nomination.
4. Willingness to spend as much time as needed to help the student.
5. Willingness to go beyond the “regular” duties if this can be helpful for the student.
7. Difficulty of the course.

How are recipients selected: The recipients are selected based on the above criteria that the nominations are measured against. After reading the nomination letters the selection committee will then numerically rate the nominations. The recipient(s) with the highest combined numerical rating will be the recipient(s) selected for the award.
Selection committee titles: Current MIT Graduate Student Council ARC chair. The titles of the additional team of 4 to 5 students will be provided as soon.

Award Contact Email: awards-gradcouncil@mit.edu